Note: The following is not a substitute for legal advice. While Caring Connections updates the following information and form to keep them up-to-date, changes in the underlying law can affect how the form will operate in the event you lose the ability to make decisions for yourself. If you have any questions about how the form will help ensure your wishes are carried out, or if your wishes do not seem to fit with the form, you may wish to talk to your health care provider or an attorney with experience in drafting advance directives.

Using these Materials

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

1. Check to be sure that you have the materials for each state in which you may receive health care.
2. These materials include:
 - Instructions for preparing your advance directive, please read all the instructions.
 - Your state-specific advance directive forms, which are the pages with the gray instruction bar on the left side.

ACTION STEPS

1. You may want to photocopy or print a second set of these forms before you start so you will have a clean copy if you need to start over.
2. When you begin to fill out the forms, refer to the gray instruction bars — they will guide you through the process.
3. Talk with your family, friends, and physicians about your advance directive. Be sure the person you appoint to make decisions on your behalf understands your wishes.
4. Once the form is completed and signed, photocopy the form and give it to the person you have appointed to make decisions on your behalf, your family, friends, health care providers and/or faith leaders so that the form is available in the event of an emergency.
5. You may also want to save a copy of your form in Google Health, or another online medical records management service that allows you to share your medical documents with your physicians, family, and others who you want to take an active role in your advance care planning. You can read more about Google Health at <http://www.caringinfo.org/googlehealth>.

Introduction to Your Connecticut Advance Directive

This packet contains a Connecticut Advance Directive, which is a legal document that protects your right to refuse medical treatment you do not want or to request treatment you do want in the event you lose the ability to make decisions yourself. You can complete any or all of the first four parts of this document, depending on your advance planning needs.

Part One is your Living Will. This part lets you state your wishes about medical care in the event that you are terminally ill and cannot make your own health care decisions, or are permanently unconscious. Your living will becomes effective when your doctor determines that you are in one of these states.

Part Two is your Appointment of a Health Care Representative. This part allows you to appoint a person to make health care decisions for you in the event you can no longer make your own health care decisions. Part Two is particularly useful because it goes into effect at any time your doctor determines you are unable to make your own health care decisions, not just when you have a terminal illness or are permanently unconscious.

Part Three, Designation of a Conservator, allows you to nominate someone as your conservator in the event a court determines that one should be appointed for you.

Part Four, Document of Anatomical Gift, allows you to document your organ donation wishes.

Part Five contains the signature and witnessing provisions so that your document will be effective.

Part Six is an optional Witness Affidavits section, which can be useful in the event your advance directive is challenged in court.

This form does not expressly address mental illness. If you would like to make advance care plans involving mental illness, you should talk to your physician and an attorney about a durable power of attorney tailored to your needs.

Note: These documents will be legally binding only if the person completing them is a competent adult (at least 18 years old).

Completing Your Connecticut Advance Directive

How do I make my Connecticut Advance Directive legal?

The law requires that you sign your document in the presence of two adult witnesses. The person you appoint as your health care representative cannot serve as a witness or sign the document.

If you are a resident of a facility operated or licensed by the Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services:

- at least one witness must be an individual who is not affiliated with your health care facility, and
- at least one witness must be a physician or clinical psychologist with specialized training in treating mental illness.

If you are a resident of a facility operated or licensed by the Department of Developmental Services:

- at least one witness must be an individual who is not affiliated with your treating health care facility, and
- at least one witness must be a physician or clinical psychologist with specialized training in developmental disabilities.

You may also ask your witnesses to complete the optional Witness Affidavit on the last page of the form. This must be signed in front of a notary public or other officer authorized to administer oaths. If your advance directive were ever challenged legally, the witness affidavit would be accepted by a court as evidence of the document's validity.

Whom should I appoint as my Health Care Representative?

Your health care representative is the person you appoint to make decisions about your health care if you become unable to make those decisions yourself. Your health care representative may be a family member or a close friend whom you trust to make serious decisions. The person you name as your health care representative should clearly understand your wishes and be willing to accept the responsibility of making health care decisions for you.

You can appoint a second person as your alternate health care representative. The alternate will step in if the first person you name as an health care representative is unable, unwilling, or unavailable to act for you.

The person you appoint as your health care representative cannot be:

- your attending physician,
- an operator, administrator, or employee of a health care facility in which you are a patient or resident or to which you have applied for admission, unless he or she is related to you by blood, marriage, or adoption, or
- an administrator or employee of a government agency that is financially responsible for your medical care, unless he or she is related to you by blood, marriage, or adoption.

You can appoint a second person as your alternate representative. The alternate will step in if the first person you name as Health Care Representative is unable, unwilling or unavailable to act for you.

Should I add personal instructions to my Connecticut Advance Directive?

One of the strongest reasons for naming a health care representative is to have someone who can respond flexibly as your medical situation changes and deal with situations that you did not foresee. If you add instructions to this document it may help your health care representative carry out your wishes, but be careful that you do not unintentionally restrict your health care representative's power to act in your best interest. In any event, be sure to talk with your health care representative about your future medical care and describe what you consider to be an acceptable "quality of life."

What if I change my mind?

You may revoke your Part One of your advance directive, the Living Will, at any time and in any manner, regardless of your mental or physical condition. You should be sure to notify your health care provider and health care representative of your revocation in order to ensure that your revocation is effective.

You may revoke Part Two of your advance directive, the appointment of your health care representative, only in a writing signed by you and two witnesses. You should be sure to notify your health care provider and health care representative of your revocation in order to ensure that your revocation is effective.

What other important facts should I know?

Due to restrictions in the state law, a pregnant patient's Advance Directive will not be honored.

Unless you specify otherwise in the additional instructions portion of Part Two, page 4 of your advance directive, appointment of your spouse as your health care representative is automatically revoked if you are divorced or legally separated or if your marriage is annulled.

You Have Filled Out Your Health Care Directive, Now What?

1. Your Connecticut Advance Directive is an important legal document. Keep the original signed document in a secure but accessible place. Do not put the original document in a safe deposit box or any other security box that would keep others from having access to it.
2. Give photocopies of the signed original to your agent and alternate agent, doctor(s), family, close friends, clergy, and anyone else who might become involved in your health care. If you enter a nursing home or hospital, have photocopies of your document placed in your medical records.
3. Be sure to talk to your agent(s), doctor(s), clergy, family, and friends about your wishes concerning medical treatment. Discuss your wishes with them often, particularly if your medical condition changes.
4. You may also want to save a copy of your form in Google Health, or another online medical records management service that allows you to share your medical documents with your physicians, family, and others who you want to take an active role in your advance care planning. You can read more about Google Health at <http://www.caringinfo.org/googlehealth>.
5. If you want to make changes to your documents after they have been signed and witnessed, you must complete a new document.
6. Remember, you can always revoke your Connecticut document.
7. Be aware that your Connecticut document will not be effective in the event of a medical emergency. Ambulance and hospital emergency department personnel are required to provide cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) unless they are given a separate directive that states otherwise. These directives called "prehospital medical care directives" or "do not resuscitate orders" are designed for people whose poor health gives them little chance of benefiting from CPR. These directives instruct ambulance and hospital emergency personnel not to attempt CPR if your heart or breathing should stop.

Currently not all states have laws authorizing non-hospital do-not-resuscitate orders. We suggest you speak to your physician if you are interested in obtaining one. Caring Connections does not distribute these forms.
